Cardiff, Wales, Dec. 20.—Freddie Welch, the lightweight champion of England, won his fight with Jim Driscoll, the featherweight champion, in the tenth round tonight in a free-for-all fight.

Welch, besides being five years younger than Driscoll, had the advantage of weight and reach. His blows were heavier than those of the featherweight and he showed that he was able to take more punishment.

The lightweight champion inflicted several damaging blows during the fight, but in the next round Driscoll hit Welch a couple of hard, straight blows that drew great applause. It followed this with a series of exhibition punches, the eighth round being even in that regard.

Welch was loudly booed in the sixth and seventh rounds for using the kid-glove punch so often. Driscoll was cautioned for hitting in the seventh, and in the tenth, getting his head under his opponent's chin, but was not penalized.

High words arose among the seconds and a free fight began with Driscoll leading up to good with his streaming down his face. Driscoll was the popular favorite, and the spectators expressed loud and long disapproval of the result.
